

Vinson Due to Decide Within Few Days on Cattle Price Ceiling

By GOULD LINCOLN.
Economic Stabilization Director Vinson is expected to decide within a few days whether a ceiling price is to be placed upon cattle. He is acting as arbiter in a controversy between the OPA, which is urging the ceiling price, and the War Food Administration, which is opposing it.

Involved in the problem are the requirements of the Army and the Navy and the civilian population for meat, the prices which are to be paid the producers and the processors, and the prices which must be paid by the ultimate consumers and the black market.

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming has taken the lead in bringing to Judge Vinson's attention the case of the cattle raisers. In his opinion establishment of a ceiling on cattle prices is not only impracticable but also unfair to the producers.

Asks Better Administration.
He said yesterday that the solution is to be found in a better administration of the subsidy program which has run into hundreds of millions of dollars. These subsidies are paid to the packers to enable them to pay for the cattle and at the same time to sell to wholesalers and retailers the meat which in turn is sold to the consumers, at ceiling prices.

"The War Food Administration," he said, "has stimulated increased production of meat animals primarily for the purpose of making certain that the armed forces have meat. What is left after they have been supplied is available for distribution to civilian consumers."

From 40 to 60 percent of all the good meat produced in the United States is set aside for the armed forces. The farmers and ranchers have responded to WFA demands for increased production so that in 1944 approximately 33,000,000 beef animals were sent to the block, about 10,000,000 more than in 1940. Next year the WFA wants to see 35,000,000 go to market.

Demand for Best Grade.
"The shortage of meat in the large civilian consuming centers," Senator O'Mahoney continued, "is due to the fact that there is an extraordinarily high demand for high class beef—due to the fact that they have so much money. This demand has produced a black market."

"Officers of the OPA have told me that they know who the black market operators are, but they also say they find it difficult to induce retailers to testify against them."

"Despite this reluctance, however, the OPA enforcement agents have a good record in the prosecution of black market operators. In the present year, 2,500 cases were brought against wholesalers and slaughterers in violation of the regulations. In 93 percent of the cases, the OPA got judgment. Yet it has been unable to suppress the black market."

He said the OPA in 10 months ending in October collected in fines from processors accused of violating all types of price regulations a total of $15,014,799, including those on meat. This is more than the entire cost of OPA enforcement for 1944.

None of those fines were assessed against the growers of meat animals.

Reply to Demands.
To the demands from consuming centers for a ceiling upon live animals, the producers reply that it is impossible to judge the meat value of livestock until after they have been slaughtered. So the OPA now says it does not want to put a ceiling upon individual animals on the hoof, but an overall ceiling on the entire supply of meat will be enforced through a complicated system of averages in the purchasing accounts of the packers.

In defense of the cattle producers, Senator O'Mahoney said the feed lots of the corn belt were stocked with an animal surplus. Mr. Vinson, earlier in the year, refused the request of the OPA for a ceiling on live animals.

"Now, before the process of feeding has been completed," said Senator O'Mahoney, "the OPA wishes to change the feed lots. The result will be that cattle feeders, in self-protection, will have to liquidate their animals. They will go to the block before they have reached their full weight, with a sacrifice of 200 to 400 pounds of meat per animal."

"This means that the total available supply of meat will be reduced and the consumers, retailers and the butchers who are now calling for a ceiling on live animals will defeat their own purpose. Such a program can only result in reducing the overall supplies of meat and in expanding the black market from the retail and wholesale trade into the cattle trade where it does not now exist."

Chaplin's Window Kick Puts Him in Wheelchair

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—If Charlie Chaplin attends any of the remaining sessions in the trial of Joan Berry's paternity suit against him, which resumes tomorrow after the holiday recess, it will be in a wheelchair.

The comedian kicked a glass panel at his Beverly Hills home Saturday night in an attempt to get into the house without his keys, his physician reported. He suffered a deep gash in the left ankle.

Mr. N. Edward Gousson operated to repair severed muscle tissue and said the comedian would be confined to a wheelchair for at least two weeks.

Mr. Chaplin's attorney will present legal arguments tomorrow in an attempt to convince the jury that the actor is not the father of Miss Berry's 14-month-old baby, as she alleges.

Lloyd George Given Earldom in King's 1945 Honors List

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 1.—David Lloyd George, who sold a seat in Commons for 54 years, has been raised to an earldom, receiving the highest distinction on King George's New Year honors list.

The award came less than a week after Mr. Lloyd George had announced he was retiring from Commons for health reasons and only 16 days from his 82nd birthday.

The King thus sends to the House of Lords the man who in many years of public life fought the house bitterly and at times threatened to destroy it.

Mr. Lloyd George was Prime Minister from 1916 to 1922 and often was called the "man who won the war." He became Britain's man of the hour in 1916 at the age of 55 when the outlook was dark at home and abroad. Demanding a unified command to stop the German attacks in the west, he prodded weary Britons into the fullest attack and set down all talk of compromise with the enemy.

In 1940 he led the attack on Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in a speech so slashing that the government fell.

Mark Hodgson, general secretary of the Boilermakers and Iron and Steel Shipbuilders' Union, was raised to knighthood in the 1945 honors list, as were Dr. L. E. H. Whitby, bacteriologist, and Prof. L. P. Abercrombie, famous town planner.

Florence Horsburgh and Ellen Wilkinson, members of Parliament and junior members of the government, were appointed to the Privy Council, joining Margaret Bondfield, only other woman so honored.

Lord Portal was raised to viscountcy, and Sir A. G. Hazlerigg was awarded a barony.

Two other new baronets are Sir Alton Webb, president of the Royal College of Surgeons and Sir Charles Bruce-Gardner, who will be in charge of reconversion by industry from wartime to peacetime production.

Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, first sea lord and chief of naval staff since 1943, became a Knight of the Thistle, filling a vacancy caused by the death of the Queen's father, the Earl of Strathmore.

Steel Firms Believed Prepared to Battle For Higher Prices

By the Associated Press.
Steel companies were seen today as marshaling their forces for a counterattack in a battle for higher prices.

Persons close to the industry said the companies feel that an offensive is their only way out of the financial position in which they find themselves as the result of an increase in wages.

Wage boosts estimated to average between 5 and 7 cents an hour for the 400,000 CIO United Steel Workers in the basic steel industry have been approved by Economic Stabilization Director Fred Vinson.

OPA Estimate Differs.
The Office of Price Administration figures that the wage increase will cost the industry about $80,000,000 a year, and the War Labor Board considers them immediately effective.

The industry cost estimates range up to $150,000,000 annually.

No formal statement has been issued by the companies on Mr. Vinson's decision, and industry heads are not expected to dig into the situation before tomorrow since some are widely scattered during the year-end holidays.

Those available, however, have made it clear that no noncompliance controversy will be involved. They have no intention of placing themselves in a position comparable to that occupied by Sewell Avery in the Montgomery Ward case.

Instead, the companies plan to carry the fight to OPA for higher prices substantially on these arguments:

Present ceiling prices on steel were established in 1937-8, and they were not satisfactory then.

Retrospective Feature Hit.
Even if some price increases are granted to meet wage hikes, the industry will still be left holding the sack for retrospective pay.

The wage increases, chiefly a differential of 4 cents an hour for the early night shift and 6 cents for the late shift, are retrospective to the expiration date of the last basic steel contract.

This date varies from plant to plant, but most of them ended in December, 1943.

The industry apparently has a leg to stand on in fighting for price increases since OPA advised Mr. Vinson that increases on some steel products were overdue and would have to be made.

By law price increases must be granted if the industry profit level falls under the 1936-39 average.

Officials estimate that the additional $80,000,000 cost will cut the industry's margin close to the borderline.
